

Finding Nemo

After his son is captured in the Great Barrier Reef and taken to Sydney, a timid clownfish sets out on a journey to bring him home.

The themes in the movie are friendship and the love of a father. Dory reiterates the theme of friendship throughout the movie, constantly reminding Merlin, Nemo's father, to be positive and have a go. She encourages Merlin and trusts those around her, always looking for the good in others. The other theme is the love of the father. The father fish Marlin has spent his life in fear must go on a long journey to save his son.
